

Abstract

The aim of this Master's thesis is to define the particular modes of public tenders in the Czech republic. The awarding of the public tenders represents special mean of concluding the public contracts governed by the Act N. 137/2006 Coll. This thesis concentrates mainly on the description of the particular methods of awarding the public tenders, the conditions required for their use as well as on the procurement procedure itself. The awarding procedure is characterized in accordance with the European judicial decisions, Czech case law and also the decisions of the Office for Protection of Competition. In relation to the newly adopted European directives the thesis analyses also the changes that are brought by these directives to the subject matter.